

"PROF." DOUGLAS LEAVES WESTERLY

Violinist, Horse Doctor and Humane Society Agent Taken Back to Danielson With Young Miss Hargraves—Sniffs at Possibility of State Prison Penalty—No New Developments in the Miner Shooting—Bare Chance of Granite Post Office Building After All.

SENECA, N. Y., March 2.—The Attorney General, who is making investigation of the Pendleton Hill case in which Dwight L. Miner is held on the charge of murder in shooting and killing his brother, Herbert Miner, has not yet discovered anything to indicate that the shooting was accidental or that Dwight Miner is not mentally responsible for the act, although a motive is lacking. Miner confessed that he saw the revolver when he was in the room with the victim, but he was not in the room when the shot was fired. He was taken to the police station but was not placed in custody. The young woman, Miss Hargraves, who was with the victim, was taken to the police station and is being held there. The case is being handled by the Attorney General, who is making a thorough investigation of the facts. The case is being handled by the Attorney General, who is making a thorough investigation of the facts. Local Laconics. James Oscar Miner of Pendleton Hill was a visitor on Friday in Westerly. George Bailey of New York, formerly of Westerly, is here visiting relatives. Andrew W. Fisher has leased the house owned by Edward H. Babcock in Chatham street. Albert Maxson is to erect a bungalow in East avenue, near the junction with the Watch Hill road.

Rasmus Rasmussen, in the employ of the Isaac Sherman company, had the tip of two of his fingers cut off Friday by contact with a buzz saw. In the plans of the new courthouse being built, in conjunction with the town building, there is no designation of rooms for the sheriff or clerk of the superior court. Crossed wires caused the fire alarm whistle in Pawcatuck to toot 33 Friday morning. As there is no fire alarm box of that number it was apparent that there was no fire to cause the alarm.

Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, a Watch Hill cottager, and ex-secretary of the navy, has accepted the chairmanship of the Roosevelt campaign executive committee. The business side of the campaign will receive the attention of this committee, which will open and maintain headquarters and oversee the collection of campaign funds. Douglas declared that he was known as professor as he was a violinist, and had traveled in the show business, but that by profession he was a veterinarian surgeon. He told of some of his experiences on southern trips, during which he was murdered, assaulted by a black man, and in which he was shot through the left hand, and showed the scar made by the bullet. He told of wonderful cures he had made of horses and dogs, and how he caused displeasure of many in Danielson and vicinity by faithful performance of duty as representative of the Connecticut Humane society.

He said he was not wholly to blame for the act for which he was held, but that the action of his wife was the indirect cause, and that he proposed to "post" his wife on the very first opportunity. Miss Hargraves did not seem to take the situation seriously, but rather enjoyed hearing Douglas tell of his experience in the south and the wonderful work he had accomplished as a dog and horse doctor, with hints on trading horses as a side issue.

Douglas has resided in East Killingly for about three years, and has a wife and one child, about three months old. The Douglas and Hargraves family have been paying attention to the Hargraves girl for some time and made her many minor payments. He filed a number of violent engagements for dances in East Killingly, and was to have played for a dance last Saturday night, but he disappeared before midnight, and the result was a large estate in that place, but the father wisely provided for a trustee of the estate so that it could not be wasted by the son. The trustee has announced that the estate will properly provide for Mrs. Douglas and child.

When Constable Sayles arrived at the Westerly police station, Douglas said he was anxious to get to the Danielson court just as soon as possible, as he wanted this matter ended without delay. He said he would be satisfied to pay a fine, which probably would not exceed $15, but that he did not expect to receive a jail sentence.

When informed that a state prison sentence might be the result, he smilingly replied that he knew the law, and tried the case and that what he had done was no state prison offense.

Postmaster Charles J. Butler received Friday complete plans and specifications for the proposed postoffice building in Westerly. While the general specifications are for a building of marble above the first floor of the one-story building, provision is made for alternate bids in regard to the
